The Sunrise

A modern sitcom set in a beachside backpackers hostel

At Brighton Beach in the UK :	Dylan Moran & Tamsin Greig
At Santa Monica in LA :	John Mulaney & Sarah Silverman
At the Gold Coast / Byron Bay:	Dylan Moran & Tamsin Greig
(or)	John Mulaney & Sarah Silverman
(or)	All-Aussie Cast / Mixture . . .

The principal characters are to be performed by a multicultural cast, and an ideal location will be selected subject to scheduling and availability.

The production personal and facilities will be occupied mainly by the city and state in which the Sunrise is to be produced.

The Pilot & Episode 1 are camera ready, and there are about 30 Plots and Sub-Plots ready to be written, some of which have been briefly outlined.

The screen time of the Pilot & Episode 1 is about 24 to 28 minutes, and can be modified to suit cable, internet streaming and various other media, all of which that can be edited or manipulated for prime time or general exhibition.

The Sunrise is a relatively fast paced sitcom and the Pilot & Episode 1 have been written as shooting scripts with an elaborate narrative and description mainly for the benefit of actors, writers, directors and production personnel, so as to have a comprehensive understanding of the character's habits, personalities, relationships, background history, atmospherics and the physical structure of the overall situation.

The Pilot is an hour double episode, and Episodes 1 through to 10 will be half hour episodes that will be written as normal TV and dialogue script, allowing the writing team, directors and others, the creative licence to interpret or develop the characters and situation throughout the first series and beyond.

Writers to be considered are Geoffrey Atherden, Michael Kalesniko, Simon Hopkinson, Kym Goldsworthy, Phyllis Foundis and others.

Three directors, two camera units, actors and production management, to be confirmed leading into the initial preparations and pre-production stages.
